Your home may be one of the largest investments you'll ever make. To protect it, you need an owner's title insurance policy. Title insurance protects you against hidden hazards and human error that can cause problems in any real estate transaction. When you purchase title insurance, experienced title examiners perform a thorough title search by combing through all available public records, but there's always a chance that substantial problems may go undetected. Your property is pledged as security for your mortgage loan, so your lender protects its interest through a lender's title insurance policy. However, this policy doesn't cover you. You need an owner's policy.

Why You Need Title Insurance

How it Works

An owner's policy protects your interest in the property against such unforeseen threats to ownership as:

- Mistakes in recording of legal documents
- Forged deeds, releases, or wills
- Mistakes in recording of legal documents
- Forged deeds, releases, or wills
- Undisclosed or missing heirs, including spouses
- Deeds by persons of unsound mind
- Deeds by minors
- Deeds executed under invalid or expired power of attorney
- Liens for unpaid taxes
- Fraud

For a one-time premium you pay during the closing process, your title insurer assumes responsibility for all legal expenses to defend the title to your property if it's ever challenged.

Ask your real estate professional about purchasing an owner's title insurance policy from a America's One Title. Our local presence and quality service make protecting your investment easy and affordable.
